

Distance Education Instructor Bios

Distance Education has a new look this year for ABLE programs. Referring Partners will be working with the Ohio Literacy Resource Center and three experienced distance teachers to provide online instruction to students interested in increasing their learning experiences. As distance students are recruited by programs, they will be assigned to one of these teachers who will monitor student online learning and work with the classroom instructor to further the student's goals.

Heidi Daniels is an educator who has served adult learners in many countries and many settings over the last 25 years. She is currently a lead teacher with Canton City Schools ABLE and has been involved in ABLE distance learning since 2008. She will be working with both ESOL and ABE/ASE students this year. Heidi also provides graduate workshops for educators through Malone University.

Jenny DeJong has taught ESOL for many organizations and schools within the Columbus area that include: CRIS Eastland Career and Technical Schools, Columbus State, CMAA, Kaplan, Columbus Literacy Council, Gahanna-Jefferson Schools, and Delaware Area Career Center. Jenny has traveled in many different countries and has taught ESOL abroad in Italy and China and enjoys working with ESOL students, equipping them to succeed in the goals they have set for themselves. She has spent the past 5 years as a Distance Education teacher and looks forward to helping ESOL distance students further their educational goals.

Cindy Price has been an adult education instructor for over 28 years. She has taught Title One Reading and Math, ABLE, and GED classes. She currently teaches ABLE classes through Clark State and has been involved in the ABLE distance education classes since 2008. Cindy has also taught classes through Ashland University and Marion Technical College. She will be working with the ABE /ASE students this year through distance education.
